CONTINUES HUNT FOR MRS. STOUT
Department of Justice Agent Extends Search to Fredericksburg, Va.
NO FUNDS FOR INQUIRY
Laskey's Graft Probe Handicapped by Inability to Engage Investigators.

The District Attorney's office yesterday openly admitted that the bureau of investigation of the Department of Justice is giving assistance in running down certain clues in connection with the police graft investigation, as was exclusively reported in The Herald yesterday.

District Attorney Laskey explained that the investigation still was in the charge of his office, aided by Maj. R. W. Pullman, superintendent of police, but asserted that because of the inadequacy of funds and detectives at his disposal, it had been found necessary to seek aid from the Department of Justice.

Margaret Stout Sought.

Mr. Laskey confirmed the statement published yesterday exclusively in The Herald to the effect that J. Stuart Price, of the Department of Justice, had been sent to Colonial Beach, Va., in search of Margaret Stout, one of the graft investigation witnesses, who was reported to have been seen at the resort earlier in the week.

It developed yesterday that Assistant District Attorney Samuel McComas Hawken was at Colonial Beach Thursday to interview a person whose name had been mentioned in the course of the investigation. He refused to divulge the nature of the information he succeeded in obtaining.

According to a dispatch received last night by The Herald from its correspondent at Fredericksburg, Va., Mr. Price arrived there yesterday afternoon from Washington at 11 o'clock, did several hours of stunting in connection with the graft investigation, and left on the 4:50 o'clock train for the Capital.

Mr. Price, in his search for Mrs. Stout, also spent considerable time at another hotel, but did not register there.

Many Clues Investigated.

No witnesses were examined yesterday by Mr. Hawken, who spent the day in his office at City Hall going over the evidence so far added. He would not say whether he had any prospective witnesses for next week. He said that every available clue pointing toward police graft is being investigated in the minutest detail.

It is expected that when the grand jury meets September 8 evidence will be in the hands of the District Attorney's office of a sufficiently convincing nature to warrant the returning of indictments against half a dozen members of the police force.
